

Ties, palisades & poles

Ties and palisades are among the most versatile wood construction elements in garden and landscape construction. Retaining a riverbank or slope, creating playgrounds, or a privacy wall -- the possibilities are endless. Unfinished resistant varieties of wood, such as oak, Douglas fir, and black locust have proven themselves in these applications. Over time, the natural graying process gives ties and palisades constructed of these woods an attractive silvery hue.

Ties are commonly used to shore up soil and to harden banks. They are planed on all four sides and the lengthwise edges have a hard bevel. We provide ties in oak, black locust, and Douglas fir.
